

Need Improved Access to the Special Education Technology Knowledge Base?

Unlike other citation databases that arrive empty and require you to fill them in, Cite Minder is a ground breaking new tool that delivers the latest additions to the special education technology research, practice, and leadership knowledge base right to your desktop.

We do all the hard work of browsing the contents of 31 journals, creating citations for each relevant article, and analyzing each article to add extensive meta-tags. We prepare an update to Cite Minder each month, so that you always have access to the latest knowledge right at your fingertips.

Cite Minder is ideal for:

- students
- faculty
- researchers
- teachers
- curriculum directors
- educational leaders
- grant writers
- technology specialists

Use Cite Minder to conduct simple searches by keyword, author name, year, or journal name. Or, narrow your search by focusing on a specific disability, grade level, subject area, or technology. Research meta-tags allow you to search for studies based on methodology, sample size, specific data analysis procedures, and more. Powerful Cite Minder search tools will save you hours of time as you search, browse, and explore the special education technology knowledge base.
